

Requirements for Transferring a Student from a Non-Thesis Option to a Thesis Option within the Program

Based on the number of graduate students in the programs and the thesis load of the faculty, the necessary requirements for transferring a student from a non-thesis option to a thesis option within the program are listed below:

- the must courses should successfully be completed in the first two semesters,
- the CGPA should be more than equal to 3.0,
- a signed document from the faculty member who agrees to advise/supervise the thesis,
- the thesis topic and a short thesis proposal approved by the thesis supervisor.

Students registered in a non-thesis option who fulfills the requirements can apply for transferring from a non-thesis to a thesis option within the same program.

Evaluation and admission of these applications will be based on the load of the supervisor, academic performance of the student, especially in core courses, and the CGPA.
